KARI GLISSON EARNS CERTIFIED ASSOCIATION EXECUTIVE CREDENTIAL

Washington, DC – The American Society of Association Executives has announced that Kari Glisson, CAE of Association Management Resources (AMR) of Tallahassee, Florida has earned the Certified Association Executive (CAE™) credential. The CAE is the highest professional credential in the association industry. Less than five percent of all association professionals have earned the CAE.

“I am proud to hold this credential,” says Glisson. “This achievement represents years of preparation during my professional journey.”

To be designated as a Certified Association Executive, an applicant must have a minimum of three years experience in nonprofit organization management, hold a bachelor’s degree, complete a minimum of 75 hours of specialized professional development, pass a stringent examination in association management, and pledge to uphold a code of ethics. To maintain the certification, individuals must undertake ongoing professional development and activities in association and nonprofit management. Approximately 3,400 association professionals currently hold the CAE credential, which was first awarded in 1961.

The American Society of Association Executives is an individual membership organization of more than 22,000 association executives and industry partners representing nearly 11,000 organizations.
